Johan Sara jr. -Transforming-

Johan Sara jr. is born and raised in Alta, and lives in Maze. He is now releasing his twelfth album. This album is the second in a series of 3, a trilogy with sound recordings taken from the coast of Finnmark. Sound/field recordings of the ocean, birds, walking at land and beach and many other elements which are further developed through a whole trilogy - dramaturgically, dynamically and progressively. The concept of this release is to reflect the sea-sami life in Finnmark through sound. An art work with a clear theme. This trilogy project is a continuation of the Transmission trilogy, which in turn reflects the Sami world in the inner and high plains part of Finnmark.

Unlike No. 1 "Sea Sami, See" that contains only natural sounds, this release is a further development of the natural sounds in an electronic direction. Acoustic sounds are processed electronically and assembled to an entire composition of approx. 1 hour. With clear sound, we will be taken to the coast of Finnmark. Long timbres and quiet but intense periods, dynamic animal and bird sounds and the mysteries of silence lead the listeners on an exciting journey on the coast of Finnmark in spectacular nature. The music illustrates the interaction between man and nature in a harsh and shifting climate. The story tells of a sturdy type of people who has survived the harsh climate in the north through generations and where the ocean gives and takes, but regardless of everything, the eyes are always facing the ocean without worries about the situations of life. No.1 "Sea Sami, See" illustrates the image on the sea. No. 2 "Transforming" on land. What will be No.3? Pay attention!
